

Meaningful Engagement of Key Populations in HIV Programming

Abstract | Advocacy & Policy

Meaningful engagement of key populations is a foundation of effective HIV programming. This abstract examines how the Consortium and its member networks participate in the design, implementation and governance of programmes that affect their communities. It considers the difference between consultation and genuine partnership, the structures that enable communities to influence decisions, and the outcomes that follow when affected populations help shape priorities.